The weather has changed once again, but this time it has brought snow! Just as the weather changes, so does the fashion.

Similar to fall fashion, winter trends include: cardigans, sweaters, scarves, boots, and more. Winter clothing tends to be darker colored and thicker materials. Winter is sometimes harder to dress fashionably out of fear of being cold. Layers are the key to staying warm and looking good.

Whether you plan on dressing cute or cozy this winter, you can follow new and old trends such as sweaters and leggings. When asked about what winter trends she saw repeated each year, DHS fashion teacher Ms. Morris said, "For the past couple of years, or even farther than that, Ugg boots are always a trend, or like brand boots. Plaid is back again this year. Something new is printed leggings."

Keeping those trends in mind, along with a few other ones, some outfits were put together. These outfits can vary in brands, colors, and more. Add your own unique twist to each outfit.

A casual outfit for anyone would be jeans, a plaid shirt with a puffy vest layered on top, and boots. A blanket scarf and fuzzy socks would keep you warm and cozy. Sweaters paired with jeans, or leggings, are always in fashion. Accessorizing with watches, jewelry, hats, and more adds nice touch to your outfit.

Dressier outfits can also be comfy in winter. A sweater dress with tights or leggings underneath for warmth, paired with over-the-knee high boots is perfect for parties or social events. A sweater with a dress shirt underneath, khakis, and dress shoes looks great for a dressier occasion.

A big thing in winter to save your shoes from getting damage is water proofing them! This can be ordered online or purchased at stores like Walmart or Target. This can be used on all types of shoes to prevent water or salt stains.

This winter you can be fashionable and stay warm at the same time. Adding more layers to your fall outfits is a great way to do this. Following old trends is fun, but don't be afraid to try something new!
